Mission Statement: The Parish of Immaculate Conception/St. Bridget's is a Roman Catholic faith community whose worship reflects and celebrates the cultural gifts and diversity of its members. We welcome all believers to worship God, love one another, evangelize the good news of Jesus Christ and serve those in need.

Blessed are they who hunger and thirst for righteousness.

By proclaiming the beatitudes, Jesus turns the world's values and expectations upside down. He tells us that the poor, the meek, and the hungry are at the center of God's kingdom, not the wealthy or powerful. God's ways are not our ways, and Jesus' words invite us to live by a different set of standards than the world offers. Those who hunger for God's ways will be satisfied.

The Origins of Black History Month

Harvard-trained historian, Carter G. Woodson, like W. E. B. Du Bois before him, believed that the truth about the contributions of African Americans to civilization could not be denied and that reason would prevail over prejudice. His hope to raise this awareness was realized when he and the organization he founded, the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History (ASNLH), conceived and announced Negro History Week in 1925. The event was first celebrated during a week in February, 1926, that encompassed the birthdays of both Abraham Lincoln and Frederick Douglass. The response was overwhelming: Black history clubs sprang up; teachers demanded materials to instruct their pupils; and progressive whites, not simply white scholars and philanthropists, stepped forward to endorse the effort.

By the time of Woodson's death in 1950, Negro History Week had become a central part of African American life and substantial progress had been made in bringing more Americans to appreciate the celebration. At mid-century, mayors of cities nationwide issued proclamations noting Negro History Week. The Black Awakening of the 1960s dramatically expanded the consciousness of African Americans about the importance of Black history, and the Civil Rights movement focused Americans of all colors on the subject of the contributions of African Americans to our history and culture.

The celebration was expanded to a month in 1976, the nation's bicentennial. President Gerald R. Ford urged Americans to "seize the opportunity to honor the too-often neglected accomplishments of Black Americans in every area of endeavor throughout our history." That year, fifty years after the first celebration, the association held the first African American History Month. By this time, the entire nation had come to recognize the importance of Black history in the drama of the American story. Since then each American president has issued African American History Month proclamations. And the association—now the Association for the Study of African American Life and History (ASALH)—continues to promote the study of Black history all year.

(Excerpt from an essay by Daryl Michael Scott, Howard University, for the Association for the Study of African American Life and History)

Did You Know That....??

Gladys Mae West (née Brown; October 27, 1930 – January 17, 2026) was an American mathematician. She was known for her contributions to mathematical modeling of the shape of the Earth, and her work on the development of satellite geodesy models, which were later incorporated into the Global Positioning System (GPS).

Did You know That...??

Every day for the month of February- Black History Month- a short article titled Did You Know That...? will appear on Immaculate Conception/St. Bridget's Facebook page featuring a person of color or an event that has impacted American history but may not have gotten its rightful place in our history books. Also, we will feature one of the articles in each Sunday bulletin for the month of February.

While each article on Facebook and in our bulletin will be brief, we encourage you to do your own research into these courageous pioneers and leaders. Let us not forget the principles of Kwanzaa as we remember and familiarize ourselves with the roles that people of color have played in this AMERICAN history. These principles are not to be confined to seven days in December, but should be a part of every day and in everything we do:

First Principle: Umoja (Unity)-to strive for and maintain unity in the family, community, nation and race.

Second Principle: Kujichagulia (Self-determination) to define ourselves, name ourselves, create for ourselves and speak for ourselves.

Third Principle: Ujima (Collective work and responsibility)- to build and maintain our community together and to make our brothers' and sisters' problems our problems and to solve them together.

Fourth Principle: Ujamaa (Cooperative Economics) - to build and maintain our own stores, shops and other businesses and to profit together from them.

Fifth Principle: Nia (Purpose)- to make as our collective vocation the building and developing of our community in order to restore our people to their traditional greatness.

Sixth Principle: Kuumba (Creativity)- to do always as much as we can, in the way that we can, in order to leave our community more beautiful and beneficial than when we inherited it.

Seventh Principle: Imani (Faith)- to believe with all our hearts in our people, our parents, our teachers, our leaders, and the righteousness and victory of our struggle.

28 Days of Black History

Visit <https://www.28daysofblackhistory.com/> and subscribe to receive Black history information daily during Black History Month. The theme for 2026 is "A Century of Black History Commemorations." We'll trace the moments throughout history we've honored the Black American experience, from cultural moments of boundary breaking to major individual and group achievements.
